Girard Denies Army Applies Any 'Pressure'

General, Major Flank Embattled GI in Japan During Press Parley

CAMP WHITTINGTON, Japan (A)-William S. Girard said today in the presence of a Pentagon general that the U.S. Army is not putting pressure on him.

Girard, 21-year-old Army specialist third class scheduled to be tried in Japanese courts for the shooting of a Japanese woman, made a press conference appearance flanked by two Army officers—a general and a major.

With him were Brig. Gen. Charles Docker, assistant judge advocate general of the Army, and Maj. Stanley Levin, the soldier's personal legal adviser appointed by the Army Far East Command.

States that "the whole Far East $390 million. Command" was putting pressure on him but he didn't know what they wanted him to do.

Girard also said in the telephone alk that Levin had told him he would get a stiffer sentence if tried by the Army than amendment by Sen. Long (D-La) of the sprawling post. if tried by the Japanese. couldn't hear me." Girard whispered frequently to both the general and major during the brief press conference and nervously calsped and unclasped his hands. At one point Gen. Decker whispered to Girard something about making clear "you mean no person in the Army."

The soldier answered "no comment" when asked whether Levin or anyone else had told him that Japanese sentences run lighter than those given by the Army. Decker on his arrival from Washington Wednesday said he had come to do all he could to protect Girard's interests. He had his first meeting with the soldier just before the press conference.

Farm Bureau Calls Parley On Corn Setup

WASHINGTON (P)-The American Farn. Bureau Federation has called a conference of its leaders in corn-producing states at Chicago June 17 to discuss proposals

The bureau dislikes the present corn law which greatly reduces corn planting allotments and requires that the crop be supported between 75 and 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to prices charged them.

Its leaders have in the past favored a program that would allow lower supports but larger planting allotments. They supported a plan of this kind for the 1957 crop, but it failed to get the necessary two-thirds vote of growers voting at a referendum.

Cotton state Farm Bureau leaders are recommending a program picked to succeed Peterson as fedof this kind for the 1958 cotton crop. It is possible a similar plan may again be advanced for corn.

They also blame him for cutting down on post-office service when the money he has sought for carrying on as usual is refused his department by Congress.

Very few people indeed take the time to find out why the cost of the post-office service is at the point which is now presented.

Nearly everyone expects the service to continue as usual without an honest analysis in order to learn why. They refuse to recognize increased costs.

The deficit of the department is not a new subject. It has been going on and growing for years. Yet when an official tries to take action to bring this to greater public attention and seeks some action by Congress to do something toward a solution, he is the one the public blames.

Meanwhile Congress itself, political ly minded as usual, listens to the various pressure groups and joins in blaming the Postmaster General, even though he is trying to show why the department should be conducted on a basis to make it a business rather than what practically amount to a charity. He seeks to provide serv i c e only so far as funds allotted to him permit, even though it means a curtailment in service.

Congress has consistently refused to appropriate funds deemed necessary to provide that caliber service demanded and expected by the American people, nor

From comments we all hear relative to has that legislative body permitted the department to increase its rates. This in the face of an 18 per cent increase in the volume of mail in the past five years and over 60 billion pieces of mail handled annually, according to figures from a Post Office Department official.

That the department will continue to depend on congressional appropriations is assured. However it seems sensible to expect those who use the service to pay for it. Needless to say the man who sends two letters a week is not as concerned as the one who sends 2,000. Yet both pay approximately the same rate.

A four and also a five cent rate for firstclass mail has been proposed by the Department as a step in the better - business direction. Even this cost, if adopted, the department points out, will not pay the full amount spent on processing and delivering the letter. The other proposal is the elimination of third - class mail, the bulk trivia which bog down the sorter and carrier. Both suggestions probably would make for a smoother and more efficientand much more economical-postal organization. Only the "big" user, the man who saves most on three - cent rates and third - class mail, stands to lose much by a new arrangement. And he is the one who should pay the most anyhow.

It seems reasonable to let Summerfield proceed unmolested in his job. It is heartening to see in Washington a man more concerned over the quality of his work than many others apparently squandering the taxpayers' money without due regard to the needs or interests of the one who, after all, foots the bill. We must expect to pay more for postal service or cut down

Postoffice Problem Should Be Viewed Fairly

postoffice activities, in which all of us have a stake, most people argue from the viewpoint that they see no reason for having to pay higher postal rates and they blame the present postmaster general, Arthur Summerfield, for proposing such a

They also blame him for cutting down on post-office service when the money he has sought for carrying on as usual is refused his department by Congress.

Very few people indeed take the time to find out why the cost of the post-office service is at the point which is now pre-

Nearly everyone expects the service to continue as usual without an honest analysis in order to learn why. They refuse to recognize increased costs.

The deficit of the department is not a new subject. It has been going on and growing for years. Yet when an official tries to take action to bring this to greater public attention and seeks some action by Congress to do something toward a solution, he is the one the public blames.

Meanwhile Congress itself, political ly minded as usual, listens to the various pressure groups and joins in blaming the Postmaster General, even though he is trying to show why the department should be conducted on a basis to make it a business rather than what practically amount to a charity. He seeks to provide serv i c e only so far as funds allotted to him permit, even though it means a curtailment in service.

Congress has consistently refused to appropriate funds deemed necessary to provide that caliber service demanded and expected by the American people, nor

From comments we all hear relative to has that legislative body permitted the department to increase its rates. This in the face of an 18 per cent increase in the volume of mail in the past five years and over 60 billion pieces of mail handled annually, according to figures from a Post Office Department official.

That the department will continue to depend on congressional appropriations is assured. However it seems sensible to expect those who use the service to pay for it. Needless to say the man who sends two letters a week is not as concerned as the one who sends 2,000. Yet both pay approximately the same rate.

A four and also a five cent rate for firstclass mail has been proposed by the Department as a step in the better - business direction. Even this cost, if adopted, the department points out, will not pay the full amount spent on processing and delivering the letter. The other proposal is the elimination of third - class mail, the bulk trivia which bog down the sorter and carrier. Both suggestions probably would make for a smoother and more efficientand much more economical-postal organization. Only the "big" user, the man who saves most on three - cent rates and third - class mail, stands to lose much by a new arrangement. And he is the one who should pay the most anyhow.

It seems reasonable to let Summerfield proceed unmolested in his job. It is heartening to see in Washington a man more concerned over the quality of his work than many others apparently squandering the taxpayers' money without due regard to the needs or interests of the one who, after all, foots the bill. We must expect to pay more for postal service or cut down

For Father's Day: 4 New Teeth

NEW YORK (P) - All I don't ist and got his side of the story want for Father's Day is four front teeth

But come Sunday I'll be wearing four new store ones, although at the moment I'm not sure whether I'll be wearing them in my face or my back pocket.

Other happy fathers will be proudly showing off the presents showered on them by their loyal kinfolk: rainbow neckties, dazzling robes, beach shoes (one size too small), peacock sport shirts, new power lawnmowers.

And what'll I be doing? Standing in front of a bathroom mirror, making faces at myself, and saying, "Miss-i-thip-pa," "Myth-i-sissy," "Myth-i-this-pee." Maybe by night fall I'll be able to ring the bell once loud and elear: "Mississippi!"

When my dentist first proposed about ayear ago to take out my four upper front teeth, I ran out of his office, figuring the guy either had delusions of grandeur or else was taking money from Moscow to sabotage the American way of life.

You'd be surprised how many folks own brand-new cars yet still hold on to "Model-T" types of auto insurance!

For example, $5,000 Prop-? erty Damage Liability on your car just may not be enough for present-day needs. That's why Nationwide offers a new $10,000 Property Damage coverage - that gives you twice as much protection as your present $5,000 coverage — for only a slight additional premium!

You'll find Nationwide auto insurance is really up-to-date - gives you rates lower than most . . . service equal to the very best. For full details phone, write or see me soon!

You'd be surprised how many folks own brand-new cars yet still hold on to "Model-T" types of auto insurance!

For example, $5,000 Prop-7 erty Damage Liability on your car just may not be enough for present-day needs. That's why Nationwide offers a new $10,000 Property Damage coverage — that gives you twice as much protection as your present $5,000 coverage - for only a slight additional premium!

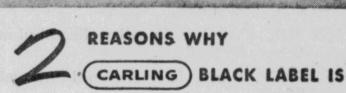

You'll find Nationwide auto insurance is really up-to-date - gives you rates lower than most . . . service equal to the very best. For full details phone, write or see me soon! Sincerely,
